NANCY JUNKIN

Nancy Junkin is a visual artist whose work invokes bold color stories to create a sense of harmony and beauty in a chaotic world. Junkin, who has studied under artists from across the Southwest United States and California, believes that color influences both mood and identity. Twenty years ago, a dream pushed her to pick up a paintbrush. Ever since, she's used painting as a mode of therapy and discovery— both for herself and for her clients. Her work, which draws on abstract and realist practices, is represented by the Howell Gallery in Oklahoma City.
